

Bucks County

magazine

CLOSE UP

ALL IN THE FAMILY...LAW

Jeff Williams and Susan Smith know a thing or two about divorce. These celebrated attorneys have exclusively practiced family law for decades...about 72 years combined, as a matter of fact. Part compassionate listeners, part knowledgeable counselors and part formidable advocates, they help people navigate the complexities of dissolving a marriage and negotiating for financial assets and support, child custody and more. But there is one other aspect of their professional partnership that sets them apart in having a special understanding of their clients' needs: they were once a married couple.

All too often, they worked with clients who, through sadness or anger, found their breakups navigating into toxic territory. So when Jeff and Susan made the difficult decision to divorce, they were determined to do so with respect and, above all, a commitment to their two sons, whom they continue to amicably co-parent. Their relationship remained on such good terms, in 2016 Susan left a large national law firm to merge her practice into Williams Family Law - the practice Jeff established in 2004. They now manage that practice together along with the firm's other partner, Robert Salzer, heading up the largest team of Family Law attorneys in Bucks County.

"We know how divorce feels from our own experience, and that makes a huge difference," said Jeff. "It allows us to prepare our clients fully for what to expect and how to persevere." Added Susan, "It's not easy, we know this, but for us it is fulfilling to use our professional and personal experience to guide clients through a respectful transition... or, when necessary, get ready to help them prevail."

If you're seeking legal advice and guidance on separation, divorce or custody issues, don't hesitate to reach out to Jeff, Susan or their colleagues. Williams Family Law, P.C. is located at 43 North Pine Street, Doylestown, PA. For more information, visit www.bucksfamilylawyers.com, call (215) 340-2207, or email info@bucksfamilylawyers.com.

